ODD MONTH Challenge of Opportunity COWABUNGA! March 2024

The phrase has been generally credited to Edward Kean, writer of the Howdy Doody Show in the 40's and 50's. It was adopted by surfers in the 50's and 60's as a declaration of enthusiasm. In 1965, Snoopy in Peanuts used the word whilst surfing. It became a catchphrase for Cookie Monster on Sesame Street. Michaelangelo of Teenage Mutant Turtles, Bart Simpson, and the movie Lilo & Stitch have used the word.

What has you shouting COWABUNGA!? You will have the opportunity to share up to five (5) images of your COWABUNGA moments.

ARTIST TALK

Karen Goetzinger

Wednesday, February 28

Karen Goetzinger is an abstract painter, born and raised in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, who lived in Minnesota, New York, and Ottawa, Ontario, and has recently returned to her roots in Milwaukee.

Through the use of mixed media such as acrylic, ink, graphite, and oil pastel, she expressively marks the imprint of time and place on individual memory. There is a fierceness about her brushwork— an agitation and determination and yet her paintings are often described as beautiful, uplifting, and filled with life and energy. Colors and strokes with forward movement push off the edge of the canvases as if there were not enough space to contain all that life.

She holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Fashion Design with an emphasis in Fine Arts from Mount Mary University in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Her work is exhibited by public and commercial galleries throughout North America, in cities such as Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, and New York. It has been shown in exhibition spaces in China and Australia and hangs in private and corporate collections internationally.

THE LIFE OF WATER

Artists are challenged to create their interpretation of the earth's most valuable element that is fundamental to all life. H₂O combines to make the earth's valuable liquid that is integral to sustenance, solubility, bathing, power, agriculture, industry, recreation, transportation, and more. Liquid, gas, or solid, which form of H₂O inspires you most?

Applications are open from March 1 - March 31. To read the prospectus and apply for this show, check out the Cedarburg Art Museum website.
